

SONGS OF PRAISE

The church of karaoke comes to Wexford Street...God Help Us

What's the story?

After only two months, Songs Of Praise has quickly established itself as the only place to go for some Sunday night fun, frolics and exhibitionism. The formula has been a massive success with twice hourly slots of rocknroll karaoke, glossed over with sets by some of the city's hottest DJs in between.

What can you expect?

A massive cross section of people. This is one of the most eclectic groups you'll find on a weekend night in Wexford Street. Some are there for the DJs, others are there to be discovered as a karaoke legend, and LOADS of people are there to get drunk and dare their mates to get on stage and make fools of themselves.

What do they say?

"The increasingly busy services have seen local muso heroes dueting with London Indie bands along with large groups of regulars who can actually sing followed quickly behind by some people who seem to have no problem making complete fools of themselves. At All. But surprisingly the standard has been quite high by all accounts."

What do we say?

Generally the In Dublin crowd shy away from karaoke - it's never pretty, and usually not our style at all. HOWEVER, in the cool surroundings of The Village, and with a veil of trendiness thanks to the DJ sets in between, we've been having so much covert fun at Songs Of Praise, we decided that we had to share the fun with you lot.

What's in it for you?

Eh, hello? Isn't it obvious? The opportunity to laugh at drunk people making fools of themselves without having to degrade yourself to a nasty beer stained seat in a horrible pub. The Village not only has comfy surroundings, but it has a massive drinks list, clean toilets and a perfect city centre location.

The plug

Songs Of Praise kicks off at 10pm every Sunday, so the best advice is get down early, dig through the Hymn sheet, pick your tune and get ready for Salvation. Songs of Faith and Devotion provided by Resident DJs Rory Montane and Murt a night long in between the Karaoke Slots.

Corona Extra The Ultimate Party Beer

